Project: Union Station Master Plan / Los Angeles, CA

File name: USMP_01

Description:

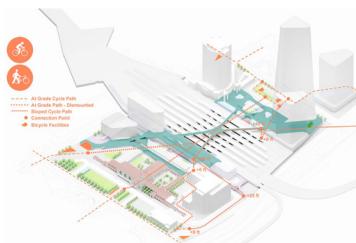

Plan View: Los Angeles' reimagined Union Station will include a series of plazas, patios, terraces, and courts connected by upper and lower circulation networks.

File name: USMP_02

Description:

Open Space Network: The design simplifies access through the site and transfers between transportation modes. Open spaces at the main entries to the West and East highlight the site's new circulation pattern through the site. Canopy trees frame clear sight lines into and out of the Station.

Description:

Bicycle Circulation Diagram: The scale of the center passageways allows for significantly increased pedestrian circulation capacity and reduced congestion around access points to the station's rail platforms. Bicycle users should be able to share many of the same new routes across the Station as pedestrians, albeit on foot.

Description:

Forecourt Perspective: This new civic open space encourages pedestrian, bike and transit use. Sightlines to the historic Union Station are enhanced/framed by tree planting and site elements. The space is comprised of a simple and consistent formal vocabulary as a means to complement the historic nature of the station.

Project: Union Station Master Plan / Los Angeles, CA

File name: USMP_06

Description:

Alameda Street Section: Narrowing Alameda Street and increasing the pedestrian capacity greatly enhances the connection between Union Station and the Historic El Pueblo District/LA Plaza. The “Alameda Esplanade” affords support and space for pedestrian and bicycle circulation, while also providing stormwater management.

File name: USMP_07

Description:

Hotel Terrace Perspective: Elevated above the historic courtyards/patios, the terrace offers a unique vantage point to overlook the historic grounds. The linear sequence of spaces includes an outdoor bar, gathering areas, screening space, and various intimate garden “rooms” for eating and drinking.

File name: USMP_08

Description:

East Court Perspective: the Court is surrounded by new retail and includes informal seating opportunities separated by a series of grassland planters that receive and filter stormwater from the site and adjacent buildings. The rooftops of the two pavilion type buildings on either side of central space features extensive roof gardens providing habitat for pollinator species.
